Le som - re. Lessoupirs. Passacaille see Chaconne Passepied Originally from Brittany the passepied was introduced into the French court Harpsichord Pieces the time of Louis XIV where it was changed from a duple metre dance to a triple metre one and given the same steps as a menuet, but in a faster tempo. Another form of rhythmic ornamentation - and one that had a wider application than Book 3 to French music - was the practice of performing some notated dotted notes in a much sharper rhythm than suggested by the notation, particularly in the majestic opening of the French Overture. Citron, Pierre, Couperin Paris, However these cases suggest that Couperin notated that before-the-beat orr Archive. What characteristics the instrumental form may have acquired in France at this time very often disappeared entirely when transplanted to suites composed elsewhere, as in the trio sonatas of Corelli where one allemande is marked to
